

Les Lumières

CEVENNES

Tour Simonet (© Cévennes tourisme)

Hidden under the vegetation are remains that look like a mediaeval fortress and tell the adventure story of coal mining.

This path leading to Le Simonet's headframe (mine tower) shows you the traces of an ingenious system for transporting coal, whose remains still cling to the slope. From the ghost hamlet of Les Lumières, you have a good view over these vestiges of open-cast coal mining from the 20th century. Le Simonet's headframe takes centre stage among the pine trees, overlooking a vertiginous inclined plane.
